Negro Deported For Fourth Time

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24 .-(P)-"In-Again-Out-Again" David Johnson, 32-year-old Panamanian negro who entered this country as a stowaway only to be deported on three separate occasions early this winter, was in again today-and on his way out again.

Johnson came in aboard the United Fruit steamer Toloa, on which he was last deported.
"Here's that man again," wryly observed immigration offi-cials and made arrangements for the second lap of Johnson's fourth free round-trip.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 25, 1938.

WILL NEW DEAL RETREAT?

Senator Alben Barkley, of Kentucky, right hand of the Roosevelt administration in the senate, in his speech at Louisville on Sunday night, hinted strongly at an early abandonment by the federal government of some activities which have been classed in the New Deal

"We have been compelled," he said, "to project the government into fields never before occupied, from some of which at least it may be possible to soon withdraw."

Senator Barkley was speaking of governmental efforts to curb what he described as "autocratic pretenses" and stated "that we have succeeded, at least in part, no observant or unprejudiced man can deny."

There is significance in the indication, coming from such a source, that the administration contemplates a lessening of the intimate relationship with business which has, in some instances, been termed by opponents of the New Deal as "interference." Taken in conjunction with the conference held last week between President Roosevelt and the Business Advisory Council, it is confirmation of the growing public belief that a new era of co-operation between government and business is near, in which both will endeavor to turn economic trends to the best advantage of the people as a whole.

Undoubtedly, as Senator Barkley says, there have been some instances of big business operation motivated by selfishness rather than the general good. It is evident that business itself has become fully awake to the fact that in the welfare of the entire population lies its own greatest guarantee of permanence.

Certainly it would be a short-sighted business man who did not realize that business can enjoy healthy prosperity only if the entire nation is prosperous, just as it would be a blind government which did not see that the economic well-being of every individual in the country, rich or poor, worker or capitalist, is inextricably bound up with the welfare of "business.

When business is poor, the nation suffers. When business is good, that happy circumstance is reflected in wage envelopes and dividend checks.

HIS OWN ACRES

In Wilkes county, this week, a tenant farmer will, for the first time in his life, be able to look over the acres of the farm he operates and call them "mine." He will be the first Georgia tenant farmer to purchase the land he works by reason of a loan from the federal government, made under the provisions of the Bankhead-Jones act.

The individual who thus becomes the pioneer in a new movement for farm ownership is 35 years of age, the father of four children, and has been a farmer all his life though never before a landowner.

The government, in thus aiding farm tenants to become owners of their fields and forests, is instigating a program that can do more for the stability of the nation and for the preservation of the ideals of Americanism than any other federal activity of recent years.

For only the man whose feet are firmly planted upon his own good earth knows in full the meaning of citizenship. He feels he is a part of the nation in fullest sense, an owner of a portion of that soil sacred to all true patriots, and a contributor to the permanent improvement of the material heritage of Amer-

Only the man who owns land can fully understand the necessity of defense against foes from without or from within. Only the man who has a permanent stake in his country knows properly the share in national growth and the eternity of life which is exemplified in his children and his children's children who shall inherit the home place after he is gone.

When each farmer owns his land and when economic conditions permit him to operate that land for fullest independence, unshackled by constant burden of debt, then shall the ideal of American freedom be realized. Every worthy man lifted from the status of tenant to that of owner constitutes one step farther down the long highway toward that ideal.

PRESIDENT TRAMMELL SCOTT

It is but natural that there is widespread gratification in Atlanta over the election of Trammell Scott as president of the Southern League of Baseball Clubs. It is the first time since the formation of the league that an Atlantan has been honored with that office, despite the fact that this city is conceded to be the strongest city, baseballically, in the circuit.

Every city in the league should feel a like sense of approval at the choice of the directors. It would have been difficult to find any man better fitted for the office

Trammell Scott has enjoyed a baseball career which has taken him into most of the activities of the game. In college baseball he was a notable figure on the teams of Georgia of more than 30 years ago. He was for a period a professional player. In more recent years he has been the chief factor in the growth of sandlot baseball in this section and he has always been keenly interested in the formation of clubs and leagues devoted to the

As a sportsman, Trammell Scott is known all over the country, and he enjoys that high reputation which cannot be fully expressed except in the well-known words that "he is a true sportsman."

He will bring to his work for the Southern league an unbounded enthusiasm, a tremendous capacity for work, and the confidence that is inspired by the general knowledge that he is a man of that integrity which is never more essential than in the conduct of organized sport of any description.

LOGAN BLECKLEY

Logan Bleckley's death removes from the Georgia scene a man who contributed much to the advancement of the state bar, both in his official capacity as clerk of the court of appeals and in his long service as treasurer with the Georgia Bar Association.

In point of service he was the oldest official at the state capitol, having held the post of clerk of the appellate court since 1907. He was known to every lawyer in Georgia and was counted as a close personal friend by most of

He was a member of one of the state's most distinguished families, being the son of Logan Edwin Bleckley, chief justice of the supreme court from 1887 to 1892, and grandson of James Bleckley, member of congress from 1843 to 1851 and a major general in the Georgia militia.

Mr. Bleckley was among the best-posted men in Georgia on court procedure and, through his connection with the bar association, was a moving spirit in the continuous campaign for simplification of court methods and for higher ethical standards in the legal profession.

DISCHARGED FOR CAUSE

Governor Rivers, in discharging the Tattnall prison guard from whom seven convicts escaped last Friday, acted with commendable promptness and firmness. As the Governor stated in announcing the discharge, it amounted to "criminal negligence" for the guard to allow the prisoners to get close enough to him to seize his gun.

There are many thoroughly competent and trustworthy men employed as convict guards in Georgia. Undoubtedly, however, some filling that position are, for various reasons, not suited to the responsibility. There can be no question that a large proportion of the numerous escapes that have brought ridicule to the state prison system in the past have been directly attributable to negligence or carelessness on the part of guards.

Georgia is now in the midst of a reformation of its prison system. Thorough investigation of the qualifications of all men employed as guards over prisoners should be a part of that reformation. No matter how perfect a prison system may be, how adequate the buildings and other physical equipment, it is always true that a system can be no better than the men who operate it.

Certainly the fitness of a guard who permits a group of convicts to escape in the manner the seven escaped last Friday, can be questioned. By promptly weeding out misfits, the Governor and other officials charged with the management of the state prisons, will perform a service that will be reflected in fewer escapes and better prison conditions in the future.

TOWERS WITH IVY

(From the Newark Advocate.) When one member of a community scores a distinguished success, it is perfectly natural and legitimate for the entire populace to glow with pride. And just in case Atlanta should try to push her claim to the citizenship of Minnie Hite Moody, Newark should be prepared to counter with, "We To be quite meticulous in this matter, Granville is really Mrs. Moody's native town; but this charming village is only six miles Newark-almost a suburb, one might say. But however this question may be decided, New ark insists upon being proud of Minnie Hite

The Advocate announced last summer that one of Mrs. Moody's books was to be published in England, and this became an accomplished fact last October. When "Towers With Ivy" was published by John Murray last fall, it elicited favorable reviews in many English papers, notably the London Observer and the London Times. The locale of this story is Granville and the theme had its inspiration in Denison University. So it is pleasant to imagine this local seat of learning hobnobbing with Oxford and Cambridge. Surely this city may be permitted a little jubi-lation in the expression of its keen pleasure in Mrs. Moody's growing success, even to the extent of presenting her with a large bunch of orchids.

F. D. R. LECTURES BUSINESS WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.-A F. D. R. LECTURES BUSINESS WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A long lecture by the President on the difficulties of his job was the most remarkable feature of the business advisory council meeting last week. And the President's criticism by name of both Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, was the most remarkable feature of the lecture.

The President's theme was that businessmen always expected too much from the administration, without in the least understanding that there were all sorts of reasons why the administration could not work miracles.

As his habit is, he illustrated his point elaborately and dramatically. One illustration was the government reorganization bill, now cally. One illustration was the government reorganization bill, now pending before the senate. The President pointed out to the assembled business leaders that they would not attempt to run their companies by an executive machinery which was merely the result of age and accident. And yet, he said, that was precisely what he had to do he had to do.

Under the circumstances, he intimated, opposition to his reest for power to reorganize the executive departments was un-tifiable, but the opposition had come—from Senator Byrd. In quest for power to reorganize the executive departments was in justifiable, but the opposition had come—from Senator Byrd. In spite of the shrewd efforts of Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, sponsor of the reorganization bill, the Virginia Democrat has succeeded in tangling the measure up pretty completely. The President paid his effectiveness the compliment of using very sharp and irritated language in regard to him.

SENATORIAL SABOTAGE As for Senator Lodge, the young Massachusetts Republican was put in the saboteurs' class because of his prevailing wage amen to the housing bill. This amendment, which would have forced the payment of prevailing wages on all prospective housing projects got the administration into a peck of trouble with the labor unions The prevailing wage could not be paid if the housing bill was to work, yet the administration had to buck the unions to get the amendment expunged in conference.

The President explained the situation to the council members scribed Lodge's action in offering the amendment as purely political and intended only to embarrass the administration. attack on Lodge, however, was far less sarcastic and surprising than

And while Byrd and Lodge were the only senators whom the President mentioned by name, he intimated rather plainly to the council members that he considered the whole senate a far co-operative body. His general tone was that, every time he tried to accomplish something useful, there was the senate, standing his path, ready to sabotage his program.

ICC AND THE PRESS In connection with the government reorganization bill, the President also mentioned the Interstate Commerce Commission with some acerbity. He pointed out that, whereas he, as President, was held responsible for the actions of any agency in the executive branch of the government, yet the ICC refused to submit itself to his control. He asked how he could be expected to deal with the railroad situation if the ICC was in no way responsible to him, and he pointed out that he had no control of the budget either, under the circum-

Leaving the subject of government reorganization, the President turned to a general discussion of the troubles which beset him when he tried to make the people understand his purposes and program. And here, as usual, he paid his respects to his particular bete noire, the press.

Newspaper columnists were singled out for a special display of presidential displeasure. He made his usual distinction between 'news," which he regards as permissible, and "interpretation, which he considers improper. Newspaper columnists, he said, usually transformed interpretation into misinterpretation. He accused the great majority of them of being unfriendly to him, and stated that he was always forced to find some way of fighting back.

SECURITIES BUSINESS The difficulties of his job were not, however, the only presidential topics. He spoke for over an hour, with little interruption from the council members, and covered considerable ground.

Among other things, he sharply attacked the prevailing system of securities distribution, which he described as "archaic," this has been a favorite theme of his in his conferences with businessmen, his point apparently being that, if investment bankers and other securities dealers were somewhat more intelligent, they could persuade the public to supply new capital to industry even in such depression times as the present.

Especially interesting in his criticism of the securities dealers was his argument that they ought to be able to find some way of disposing of securities to the "little man." He elaborated this theme

CATTLE-PAPER PARABLE Besides criticizing the securities dealers he had some unkind words for the large New York banks, and especially for the nationwide financial control he charged they exercise. In this connection, he has frequently told a story of a western cattle feed dealer who visited him on his train on a cross-country trip. According to the President, the feed dealer said that he could get no cattle-paper from the local banks because the large New York banks had issued the command that no loans against cattle were to be made. The same sort of complaint was made to the council.

It should be said in closing, however, that the President's pre-vailing tone with the advisory council was friendly and conciliatory -so much so that most council members were distinctly pleased Emphasis has been laid on his complaints only because they seemed to illuminate his state of mind rather better than his announce ats of readiness to co-operate, openmind and the like. An Old Time

Country Editor. S. A. Fackler is the author of a little book titled "Ups and Downs of a Country Editor — Mostly Downs." Date of publication is not given, but its typography indicates it is rather old. As an example of the literary style, I append the following extract:

"A fellow who was publishing a small weekly paper in a little town 20 miles above Savannah leased the old Tattnall County Journal at Reidsville, the county This paper had been suspended for quite a while. Well, he hired me to go to Reidsville and get this sheet out for him.

"I arrived at Collins' Station. six miles from Reidsville, one day about 11 o'clock, pretty well tanked up with old booze, with 20 cents in cash in my pocket. This was every red cent I had left after paying my railroad fare to Collins' Station—save a half pint of mean drink of corn liquor to let me ride with him to Reidsville. I thought that old negro driver would drean my bottle before he took it from his mouth."

Liquor Loosened

Driver's Tongue. "As we jogged along slowly through the heavy sand beds, the old driver seemed awful anxious to talk—the liquor had got his tongue loose, and he began to in-terrogate me, about as follows: "'Boss, whar's you from?'

"I told him.
"He continued: 'Is you gwine up here to Reidsville to see sum your kinfolks, er is you jes gwine on er visit to stay er while

He left me about two teaspoonsful in the bottle. I was mad enough with the old hog to have killed him then and there, but I held my tongue and temper. As soon as this drink took effect, his tongue Test Your Knowledge went to work again. He said:

"'Yes, son, you's sho er gent'mon an' schollar, and I spects to tell eberybody—white folks and cullud-dat I meets er bout yer "A turpentine wagon was at Collins' Station that day from a few miles beyond Reidsville. 'The Old Darky

We were nearing town when I gave him the bottle, and I want to say righe here, that what the old negro told me that day about those Tattnall county people was mighty correct, and they were just about like he stated they were."

The Future Of France.

NEW YORK-Mr. Sims, the forign commentator of the Scripps Howard newspapers in this country, places the blame for the break up of the Chautemps government in France on the Communists, He further predicts that if new elections are held in France, the majority of the Popular Front will be immensely reduced and that the anomaly of a nation of individualists being governed by Marxists will disappear. There are two fundamental errors in Mr. Sims' reasoning: The first rests on his unfamiliarity with the background of the Socialist movement in France, which is not Marxistic. M. Blum and his friends are as strongly individualistic as any Frenchman. It would not be difficult to prove in the light of orthodox Marxist criteria that M. Blum is not a Socialist at all. Blum and his predecessor Juares, before him, drift along or a current of convictions, concep-tions and opinions, which are in opposition to the dominant ideas of the old ruling classes. They always appealed to a community sentiment. Without stressing the class struggle by setting up a counter-egoism, these men have always sought to break the barriers in which the social order was

They were swept along by vague ideas and projects which aimed at widening the basis of social relationships. They were most of all seized in a feeling of pity and sympathy for the oppressed and underprivileged round and about them. Leon Blum may be called a sentimental but consistent Liberal His conception of socialism is not a rigid system, a sort of marvel-ously articulated and regulated mechanism. He came from the Proudhon school of individualism a outrance.

Communists Not Revolutionaries.

Secondly Mr. Sims errs when he magines that the Communists are out to wreck governments in France. They are not revolutionaries. Their course of action is dicby the desires of Moscow and Moscow desires nothing more ardently than peace, quiet, social order and tranquillity in France. A ministerial crisis, a monetary crisis in France is bad for Moscow. The Communists are the ones in France who proposed a national union and submergence of party interests to the national cause ago. It would be diametrically against their interests to push in the direction of chaos. That is the

The force which did wreck the Chautemps government, which is never mentioned by Mr. Sims in his analysis, although it is the pre-dominant social and political fac-tor in France, is the Conceil General du Travail, the C. ET EQUAL QUALITY FINAL RITES TODAY . pay less for it!

Four major factors determine the quality of typewriter ribbons. 1: fabric, 2: ink, 3: method of inking, 4: equal and ample edge sizing.

per dozen

Fabrics are graded according to "thread-count," which measures their fineness. This "thread-count" is the identifying base upon which your ribbons should be chosen. The higher the "thread-count," the finer the fabric . . . just as in a handkerchief or shirt, for instance.

Therefore, think of "handkerchiefs" or "shirts" when you buy typewriter ribbons. If you want a heavy-duty ribbon . . . select one with a low "thread-count" . . . 268 or less. This is the "utility handkerchief" or "work-shirt" quality.

On the other hand, if you want a ribbon in which clean, sharp "write" is more important than ruggedness . . . select a high "thread-count" . . . which is the finer "handkerchief" or "dress-shirt" quality—288, 295, 304 or 324 thread count.

KODYE provides Typewriter Ribbons in a variety of "thread-counts"... suited to varying requirements. Prices range as they do in handker-chiefs or shirts... "work-shirt" ribbons cost less than the "dress-shirt" kind because the fabric is less expensive.

Improved inks, advanced methods of inking and definite specification of thread count plus equal and ample edge sizing assure Randall KODYE users standardization of product ... and standardized superior results.

So, ask your stationer today to show you the KODYE SELECTION CHART. From it, he can choose for you the exact KODYE ribbon best suited to the job you ask it to do ... the particular KODYE ribbon that, because of Randell's manufacturing ingenuity, will give you quality equal to that of any other brand in the same "thread-count" ... for LESS MONEY.

Retired Atlanta Educator Will Be Buried in Oxford, Ga.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellie Dunlap Newport, member of the Atlanta public school system since 1892, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill.

Services will be conducted by Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of city schools, and the Rev. W. H. La Prade. Burial will be in the family cemetery at Oxford, Mrs. Newport died Saturday night at her home, 145 Elizabeth street, N. E., after a long illness. The pallbearers chosen by Mrs. Newport before her death, and composed of former pupils, are: Major Clark Howell, Harold Hirsch, Howell Cobb, Devereaux F. McClatchey Jr., Robert Fore-man Jr. and W. Shellman Boston.

Mrs. Newport taught at the Walker Street school, was assistant principal at the Ivy Street school, and at one time had headed the science department of Girls' High school. In 1905, she organ-ized the old Tenth Street school, now known as the Clark Howell school, and until her retirement in 1932, served as its principal. its founder the school will be closed today, Dr. Sutton announced.

A MILLIONAIRE'S WAY. The pullman porter for our car on the Southland the other night was a very pleasant person and while we sat waiting for the train to pull into Inverness before daylight, we fell into conversation with him. THE MIXT MULTITUDE. Q-Who constituted the "mixt multitude" going up out of Egypt with the people of Israel in the Exodus?

A-The mixt multitude consisted of Egyptians who went along with the Children of Israel, as they separated from Egypt, attracted no doubt by the miraculous character of Israel's deliverance. This mixt multitude is a type of unconverted church members in our day. They join the churches professing to be Christians but without any real change of heart. They may be quite sincere in their profession at the moment but sincerity will never take the place of regeneration. This mixt multitude then as now were the cause of weakness and division among the people of God. In Numbers 11:4-6 we read that "the mixt multitude that was among them fell a lusting;" that is, they were not satisfied with the manna that God sent down from heaven and desired the food of Egypt instead; "and the children of Israel wept again, and said, Who shall give us flesh to eat? We remember the fish, which we did eat in Egypt freely; the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick; but now our soul is dried away; there is nothing at all, beside this manna, before our eyes." The manna was a type of Christ as God's appointed food for His people, the bread of heaven. Unconverted church members of today, because they have lost their appetite for Christ as the bread of God, will turn to the things of the world, and will desire and demand that the things pleasing to the flesh shall be included in the work and way of the church. And because of their lusting after these things such as extravagant buildings,

Dr. Willis A. Sutton Presides at Exercises at Tabernacle.

Diplomas were awarded 53 girl graduates of Girls' High school in graduation exercises last night at the Baptist Tabernacle, at which Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools, presided.

Features of the exercises were two addresses about Atlanta by honor graduates, Hope Wingate and Martha Eggli. Miss Wingate spoke on Atlanta's centennial and Miss Eggli reviewed the city's contribution to elementary educa-

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most pyople pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheunatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and disziness.

Don't wait lake your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Danish Boxers 'Wuz Robbed' in Fights Against English

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—(By Mail.)—I have just seen the English amateur boxing team in competition against the Danes and if any one of the English should turn professional, I do not think there will be any danger to the fairest bauble of fistiana, the heavyweight crown, which, I believe, is held more or less gingerly by Joe Louis.

The matches were held in Copenhagen's huge Forum on rest "Spec" Towns, Georgia's Sunday afternoon and 7,000 people jammed their way in until world champion hurdler, intends there were no more seats to be had.

The scene was a very pretty one, with both teams, of eight men each, lined up in the ring and the bands playing the national anthems. The Danish fighters in the lighter weights won three of the four matches. Only the Danish bantam failed to win his match. He was defeated by a very fast-hitting young man named T. S. O'Brien, Mr. O'Brien bantam get somewhere. He knew how to box and infight and he could step around and, what was important, he could hit.

But, beginning with the welter and coming on down through the lot of them-welter, middleweight, light-heavy and heavythe whole lot of them, English and Danish, were, with one exception, rather bad. There was a Dane named Henry Lehman, the light-heavyweight, who popped an Englishman right on the jaw and the Englishman suddenly developed rubber legs and started wobbling around just like Leon Errol used to do in the musical comedy days. Pretty soon he was popped again and fell right down on his face. They fall in that fashion only when they really are popped.

The English heavyweight, one G. Preston, won a decision from the Dane, Omar Hermansen. The judges arrived at that decision by some devious method, probably by mental dog sled. It was rather awful. A gentleman of the press asked my opinion and I told him of the Schmeling-Sharkey fight when Mr. Joseph Jacobs climbed into the ring and spoke his little piece.

"We wuz robbed," said Mr. Jacobs, coming to the point

Mr. Hermansen was robbed.

The fact that only the Englishman Brindley fell on his face and assumed the once familiar horizontal attitude, was surprising. Tommy Farr must be a real influence.

THE STUDY OF DANISH.

This week finds your correspondent brushing up on his Danish. All on account of the fight. Mr. Harry Bendixen, the sports editor of the morning paper, had left some passes for your correspondent at the gate.

The gentleman at the gate, as it turned out, could not understand any English. I asked for "billet," but he seemed to want money for them. I asked for passes, and he didn't get it. It was an alarming situation. There were other people in line and in a hurry. Somehow I had an idea that an Annie Oakley wouldn't be understood. So, there was nothing to do but purchase tickets.

Still, the fights were worth it. The Danes in the lighter divisions were very busy little men, doing a lot of rushing and hitting and taking one to hit twice.

The European fights are rather odd because of the lack of noise. There is none of the good, two-fisted booing and yelling such as the American fight crowds let loose when the fights are on. There was very vigorous applause, made by slapping the hands together, when good blows were struck. And when a good one landed and made a loud smack, there would be a chorus of feats, will journey to Monroe for "owww" go up in a sort of subdued manner. Once some un- their fifth game tonight against couth character up in the gallery whistled and was promptly the Aggies, one of the strongest "shhhhhed" for it.

The drinkers of beer have helped pay for it through the unique foundation which each year distributes millions of kroner to art and worthy projects.

Miss Ragnhild Hveger, the young lady of 17 years who holds 12 world's records and who lives up near Hamlet's castle at Elsinore, was on the program in an effort to set a new world's record. She missed it, in the 300-yard crawl event, by a matter of two seconds with

The program included 14 events, several with heats, and closed with a water polo game, was over in time for dinner. The water polo game is itself a bit rough and I would not like hold top honors in the Big Eight to play it and have a superior swimmer on the other team as an enemy. I am surprised some murder mystery writer has not employed water polo as a scene for a murder. They almost drown one another as it is.

The boxing matches and the swimming contest were each sellouts. The Danes have more sports events going than anyone I've ever heard of. The trotting races closed in November, as did the association football schedules. But they keep busy just the same.

I am, however, a bit suspicious of them. They like to watch

Steve Swetonic, Ex-Buc Pitcher, Reminds Richards of Some Basic Principles That Will Help Any Baseball Manager. By Jack Troy

It often happens this way in life. You get out of touch with a fellow you used to know and then, after a span of years, you cross each other's path again.

Swetonic's career ended in its bloom, so to speak, when he injured the ulna bone in his elbow. Nerves got crossed up and an operation was performed. It wasn't a successful operation and the right hand began to shrivel.

This was the end of the trail for Swetonic, but he refused to be-lieve he would go through life with a shriveled hand. And so he got a rubber ball and spent hour upon hour squeezing it.

The result is today that you would never know Swetonic had hurt his arm. He had a chance after that to come back with Pitts-burgh, but the old control was "When you can't throw gone. "When you can't throw that baseball where you want to— when it starts sailing on you—

What Stocks Did.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 .- (AP)-Utilities were moderately ahead and a few gold mines, coppers and specialties did better in today's stock market, but a mild rally in the final hour failed to hold and closing prices were somewhat un-

It was the slowest 5-hour session since August 31, last. Only 537,130 shares changed hands. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was the same as Saturday's finish at 45.9. Steels enjoyed a temporary run-up when current mill operations were estimated at 32.7 per cent of capacity, an increase of 2.9 points from the preceding week. It was the fourth consecutive week's improvement in this barometer following the lengthy slide which started last fall. Most stocks in this group emerged with slight declines. Among these were United States Steel at 58 3-8, Bethlehem 62, Youngstown 39 5-8 and Crucible 39 3-8.

Selected coppers revived when the export price of the metal was cut to just under the 10-cent level, thus renewing hopes consumers will come into this market to fill postponed demands if the domestic rate is further reduced.

Utilities apparently reflected the belief these may have been oversold. Motors were listless as it was disclosed December sales on new cars were under those of November and well below the aggregate for the previous December. Rails did little either way.

Those who were waiting for the President's naval rearmament message to congress seemed disappointed on word the recom-mendations have again been de-trading swings entirely dependent on the caracter of the next piece of impressive news.

BEER & CO.—Despite the current minor irregularity of the list, it seems that the way of least resistance is still on the upside. Were it otherwise, unfavorable news, such as the market encountered last week, would have had more serious repercussions in the price level than was the case.

THOMSON & McKINNON—The market has shown no signs of discouragement, however, and it appears that constructive developments would provide incentive for a generally higher level of prices.

FENNER & BEANE—The ability of the market to display resistance, if only in a negative manner at a critical point suggests that a somewhat pronounced rally of a largely technical character may be witnessed. An attempt to capitalize on such possibilities, however, should be regarded purely as a trading experiment for recent news developments do not appear to provide the basis for an early resumption of a sustained advance.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—In its present uncertain condition the market offers little encouragement to active participation. Apparently the list is still in very much of a waiting mood.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We believe that the next price move of importance will be upward and suggest the accumulation of cotton on minor reactions.

E. A. PIERCE & CO.—We believe cotton prices will show a gradual appreciation over the next few months with settion over the next rew months with set-backs encountered on increase in offer-ings affording purchasing opportunities.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.—All commod-ty and securities markets were extreme-ly dull Monday, awaiting new develop-ments.

Nation's Naval Expansion Delay Is Discouraging to Stock Market

opyright, 1938, for The Constitution and the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc. NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The stock market lacks "good news' of sufficient impact upon sentiment to stimulate public speculative interest in the buying side. For a time, two or three weeks ago, it looked as if the government's rearmament program, which brought buying into the aviations, shipbuilding steels, shipbuilding shares and some of the metals, would furnish the needed lift. But these sections have been discouraged by delay in the President's naval expansion message. When it became known at the Trading volume on Monday shrank to the smallest total for a full session in several months. It looked as if the dealings consisted largely of little "scalping" swaps by the professional trading ele-ment, while most of the public following were on the sidelines. So far, the Dow-Jones industrial average remains technically within the 130-135 range, for it has not broken through on either side by as much as a full point. But the recent performance of that average has consisted in bouncing up mildly from the lower level of that range, rather than bobbing up against the upper level. If the situation were the reverse of that, it would look more encouraging.

Meanwhile, the railroad average is edging down closer to the "closing low" of the bear market—28.91 on December 28 last. For the past three sessions, it has closed a little lower each day. At Monday's close it was only a shade better than 34 of a point above the "closing low." Setting of a new low mark for this average would be liable to put quite a dent in senti-

Short Selling Stocks.

Ordinarily, those who go short of the market for a turn put out at least a portion of their line in regard as the latter stages of an upswing. And, if their judgment turns out to have been correct, they may sell more on this downthey may sell more on this downswing. Price limitations on short sales are designed to prevent the more or less mythical, in recent years at least, "bear drives." But the more effective in actually curtailing the volume of short selling and in reducing the outstanding short account—this latter to the detriment of the market in periods of investment liquidation—here it is designed in the state of the detriment of the market in periods of investment liquidation—here it is down the facking up of margins in all short sales to a point which discourages such operations at When a trader can sell only a limit it is down the fack profit is ited amount of stock, the "profit is ited amount of stock, the "profit is ited amount of stock, the "profit is applied to the KPC for a small loan to now levels in a number of to new low levels in a number of the market had nothing new to will cover all the contact with the contact with the contact with the contact is lower, except the announcement is lower, except the announcement that the Lehigh Valley had ap "Lip-plied to the KPC for a small loan tisk, standard freight rate decision is not specified." Cronin Says Hollywood Is "Heartbreak" Town AVERAGE PAIR OF LEGS CAN BE IMPROVED.

Impressions of Hollywood, as viewed by visiting British celebrity, are set forth here in the second of a series of articles by a world-renowned novelist. Dr. Cronin, who has just returned to London from the film capital, is the author of "The Citadel," "Hatter's Castle" and other host-selling novels.

What makes beautiful legs? Are they something that lucky people like Eleanor Powell, Ginger Rogers and Ruby Keeler are born with? Or is that devastating symmetry the result of exercise that anyone can do?

It is not unusual for 100 people to sit down to dinner in a private home. But the best parties are in-

The Logical Conclusion.

Well, here is a word of com-fort to both! Many of the most uppity decorators use artificial fireplaces to give a room a center of interest. Besides they feel that it offers an opportunity for breaking a wall pleasantly. On the other hand, there are those who those who are "agin" anything that hasn't an actual use, which would let an artificial fireplace out. PLEASANT HOMES
By ELIZABETH MCRAE BOYKIN MY DAY

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday.—The drive up to the country of Saturday was increasingly lovely. On the way out of New Yor the snow was brown and horrid, as it always is in cities a short time after it has fallen, but once we got in the real country it was white all about us. The words whereaver there was a war greens.

My little apartment in Hyde Park is somewhat upset because, during the winter, undo Miss Cook's direction, I am having the wood work rubbed down to look more the way of furniture does. The part which is finished very lovely, but as everyone has to shovel sno in order to be able to move about from pla to place, it takes quite a while to get any

We spent the evening reading and I haven had such a quiet, long night of sleep in man days. It is funny how one can leave and she all the responsibilities that go with a certain kind of life, and feel as though one were pa of a different life in a new environment!

For some of us, circumstances shape our lives so completely the I wonder sometimes what would have happened if we had bee thrown into a different groove. I imagine I might have been quit a good housewife and done my work competently day by day an enjoyed it very much. I might have been a fairly adequate farm er's wife, having the necessary health and energy, but circum stances didn't make me that or a housewife. So, after all, we are but puppets, or creatures of our fate, not commanding it but bein moulded by it.

I was very much grieved to hear of our friend, "Bobby" Fit maurice's death. Ever since I knew him in Albany, I remember his cheerful willingness to do whatever was asked of him. Wher ever he felt he had a responsibility, he was determined to see through to the end.
On the President's first campaign trip in 1932, Mr. Fitzmauric made all the advance arrangements and accompanied us on the train. On the way home he was taken seriously ill. He had to be taken off the train to a hospital in Omaha, Neb., and then cam through to Chicago on his way to a New York hospital. We wer still in Chicago and Miss Hockok and I went down to meet him at the train.

Sick as he was, he greeted us with a smile and asked how th President was getting on with his arrangements. He had to spen weeks in the hospital and I never remember hearing him complain. I think of his life as a lonely one. Perhaps he was not ver sorry to leave this world, but there will be many people who wi miss him, for he did things for everyone. Every Governor I served will miss him, for he became their friend. We shall mi his annual visit to us in Washington.

Hence it is necessary to soap and water immediately after every contact with the patient. Streptococcus, notorious killer species of bacteria, is the cause of impetigo—another reason for cleanliness in handling and for handling or touching the lesions as little as possible in any case Indeed some physicians advocate as the best treatment for impetigo the immediate application of an impervious dressing to each lesion -painting with flexible collodion a patch perhaps an inch in diameter over each vesicle, bulla or and no other treatment The collodion may be reapplied if it cracks or fails to adhere to the Furuncle is the next higher grade of boil-or lower grade, de-pending on your point of view. In fact furuncle is just a fancy name for common ordinary boil. Impet-igo might be regarded as a makebelieve boil. Furuncle is an acute deep-seated, circumscribed, phlegmonous inflammation, usually re sulting in suppuration (abscess matteration, pusformation) and necrosis (death of tissue—in the 'core" or center of the area affected). Phlegmonous means inflammation and no fooling, with plenty of swelling and pain, to-gether with enough of the other essential features to convince you beyond doubt that there is some inflammation present, if we may put it mildly. The classical signs of inflammation are calor (heat), rubor (redness), tumor (swelling), dolor (pain), all beautifully exhibited by boils. Indeed the only conceivable purpose of boils is to remind medical students of the cardinal signs of inflammation in > stay? I want to go. E. R. T Answer: It isn't your duty to stay and there is every reason why you should accept you make a life for yourself and salvage the remaining your youth. In all probability your father will re-marry, but whether or not he does, he has whether or not he does, he has had love, marriage, parenthood all the things that make a fullife. He has had his day and he may have another while you you have had nothing by comparison—and won't have unless parison—and won't have unle you make the break. Of course, manlike, he doesn realize that he has permitted yo to sacrifice your youth in solaci doesn't comprehend the fact the you have had all the responsibili-ties of running a home and makin a man comfortable without the normal joys of love and marriage But so it has been and he sho be plucky enough to bid you Goo speed on the great adventure.

It's queer so many fathers think that their daughters have plenty to eat and to wear, a place to sleep, all bills paid, the daughters should be contented. It doesn't occur to them that youth calls to youth and age cannot answer the call. They have forgotten the stirrings of their young years. They cannot their young years. They cann go back in memory to the days when the affection and companionship of their parents was not enough, to the days when they wanted love, a mate, a family and home to themselves. They have had these things so long they have forgot their yearnings

Yet life moves on and the gir who doesn't put herself in th some woman who's glad to take him on. Even if he doesn't re springly. Flavor with a few drops of oil of peppermint. Pare and core 6 medium-sized apples and a lemon party date.

THE PIPER'S TUNE

By JOSEPH McCORD.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Caradad Vardell, still a schoolgirl in pigtalls when Terry Cantine's father sent him from the cow country to a military school in the south in the hope that the discipline there would accomplish what he himself had been unable to achieve, sells Farrabow, with its rambling ranch house, less than a year after her father's death Dad, as the cowhands and finally everybody else called her "for short" decides she needs a change of some as her mother had died previously, and she starts for Chicago. At Oklahoma City, she takes a chance on wiring Terry at the last address she has. Terry, tall, handsome, lean and tanned, hardly knows the little, freckled but decidedly attractive girl who alights from the last Pullman and smiles at him through rimless spectacles. They drop into the railway station restaurant for breakfast and Terry learns for the first time of John Vardell's death and of Dad's sale of Farrabow through Judge Pomphrette, her father's old triend. She declines a cigaret over their coffee and Terry begins to have a feeling of uneasiness over entertaining the visitor. When he suggests she may want to stop at the Y. W. she asks, "Do I really look that way?" Terry is surprised when she mentions the swanky Rushmore but when he takes her there a reservation has been made by wire by the judge. She has dinner with Terry. The next day Gerta Greenway phones her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XI.

Caradad looked very thoughtful.
Terry's account of his business was startlingly like the one Mrs.
Greenway had given her. He had unusual business talents but it needed money to exploit them.
And Mrs. Greenway was worried—and helpless. That was because she cared. So much that she was afraid Terry might become interested in some girl who would Terry's nearest hand came out with an impulsive gesture, covered both of Caradad's lying folded in her lap.

"Thanks, pardner. That's the nicest thing I've heard since I hit this town. They don't know about that neighbor stuff here." He gave her small fingers a squeeze and withdrew his hand. "Don't you bother your little head over me. I'll always make out. My main job right now is to see that you have a good time while you're ested in some girl who would afraid Terry might become inter-ested in some girl who would around here. If you don't see what prove an additional burden . . . be you want, ask for it and we'll the "end" of him. Caradad found round it up."

Caradad round dere. If you don't see what tomer was about her own size and weight. She drained her chocolate cup, paid her check and went to prove an additional burden . . . be the "end" of him. Caradad found herself wondering suddenly what Mrs. Greenway's attitude would be should some woman, another will it be formal? Of course I'm thinking about clothes. If you'd rather, I could ask Mrs. Green-ways the "beginning" of the care the designer of ravishing waves. After all. . . . The result of her shopping expedition proved more breath-taking than she had anticipated when the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care the care the designer of ravishing than she had anticipated when the care the care

"That's all very different from anything I've ever known," she conceded slowly. "Do you think it's worth the investment—and anything I've ever known," she brusque retort. "Wear whatever you want—you'll look all right. There's never much formality around Nick's place and the few worry?"

"Probably not," was Terry's prompt response. "But I wasn't cut out to play the piker. I saw enough of that at home with the old gentleman. He was content to plod along and take a little profit here and there. And what did it get him? A chance to retire from hard work, but not from pinching nickels. I have to play for hig stakes, whether I win or not. And nickels. I have to play for big speaking of clothes, don't feel that you have to go out and squander your money on an outfit you may not want again in a hurry. That would be silly.

"I suppose so. But I don't want to disgrace you."

"I'm not worrying."
Shortly after that, Terry took his leave and Caradad went to her room and to bed. For a long time, however, she lay awake in the dark thinking over the events of the day, of the two unexpected acquaintances she had made . . . of Terry. It all made a jumbled picture like bits of a jigsaw puzzle. Perplexing, but interesting.

It was a relief to see the strange girl snatch off the glasses, fairly run to the dresser and drop the disfiguring lenses into a drawer and close it with a bang.

She seemed rather a nice girl after that.

Caradad's next qualm came at the end of a final dress rehearsal and a summons to the lobby where Terry was waiting to take her to Mr. Tankersley's far-flung

I propose to have a little fun as I go along."

"I'm not sure that I blame you," Caradad mused. "I've felt the same way."

"You!" Terry's laugh rang out for the first time that evening. "Excuse me," he apologized, "but that sounded funny. I can't somehow think of you as the businesswoman . . . I forgot. I reckon the same way a question of the travelers' checks remaining in her bag, pursed her small mouth speculatively and said she "believed" she would take it.

After that, there was a question. Perhaps there was no good reason why she should not return to wearing colors. And it was the most beautiful dress she had ever seen—rather a bargain, too. She made a mental calculation of the travelers' checks remaining in her bag, pursed her small mouth speculatively and said she "believed" she would take it.

doesn't bring you too much worry."

"I with Towns there was a questoo for any woman. Only hope it doesn't bring you too much worry." "I wish, Terry, there was something I could do to help you."

It came out hesitatingly, but, to Caradad's relief, the response was not the laugh she anticipated. Instead, Terry regarded her soberly for a long minute before replying unexpectedly, "Why?"

dozens of times while our boat has been steaming along. I should say the Red sea is almost, if not quite, as deeply blue as the Mediterranean.

Pearl fishers of the Red sea.

Then how does it happen we call it the Red sea? The question has not been certainly answered, but several attemmade to explain it. attempts have been

First, it is said, there are times when seaweed in some parts of the Red sea takes on a reddish color. If people saw such seaweed in early days, it may have led them to choose the name. There are also great coral reefs in the Red sea, and their pink or reddish color is plain at low tide.

Second, there are cliffs of reddish rock along sections of the

from this fact.

I asked the captain what he thought about it. He said he didn't know, but wondered whether locusts could have had something to do with it.

"start crossing the sea, and many On the Red sea: The Red sea is settle on the waters. The floating bodies of the millions and millions Of that fact I have made sure of drowned locusts have a reddish color."

> water. They are tiny, but they swarm together in such vast numbers that their reddish coloring can make the water seem red.

Whatever may be the true reason for the name, I have found the Red sea blue all through my voyage thus far.

The Red sea is about 1,250 miles long, and the width varies from 130 to 250 miles. As we ride through it, we are traveling most-ly to the south, though the route takes us a little eastward as well. How hot it is! The sun-baked deserts on either side send slow, hot winds over the Red sea, and often make it hotter than the

To the east of the Red sea lies Arabia. Along the western side is Egypt, also Ethiopia and the Italian colony called Eritrea. Ethio-pia was an independent country before Mussolini started a war in which Italy obtained power over it. The Red sea is not nearly so deep as the ocean. In some parts the water is only 200 or 300 feet deep. The deepest part goes down almost a mile and a half.

TARZAN THE FEARLESS

Curiously, but with no feeling of pity, Tarzan followed through the trees. Dr. Brooks no longer cried out, for his captors had ceased beating him. But it was only a brief respite. In a few minutes the warriors were again raining blows on his ema-ciated body.

No.

Tarzan stiffened. The sight of deliberate cruelty was one of the few things that cracked his usual calm. By heritage and training, he was half man, half beast; but he was prouder of his kinship with the beasts, for among them the vice of cruelty was

The animals of the forest killed swiftly, for food or in self-defense. Only men killed wantonly; only men were brutal to other creatures. The Jungle Lord's jaw set firm. He was resolved to save the mysterious captive and punish his fiendish captors.

Tarzan was well aware of the odds against him-a score of fierce, well-armed warriors. But I would have been no less determined had there been a thousand. When he had a mission to perform, he did not count the odds. The mighty Tarzan was ready for war!

By Frank Owen GARBAGE CHARGES IN FULTON SHOWN

> Proposed Scale Is $7.50 a Year for Homes of Less Than Eight Rooms.

Garbage which are proposed for residents of Fulton county under the new garbage disposal plan were revealed yesterday at a joint meeting of the county commission and the board of health to discuss the projected districts. Sewage districts were discussed.

The annual rates very from $48 for hotels and grocery stores to $7.50 for homes of less than

The boards heard a recommendation from Dr. Thomas H. Reed, who has been conducting a survey of the county and city govern-ment, on the administration of the sanitation department. He advised it should be placed under the pub-lic works department rather than the board of health while it is operating on a small scale. The board agreed tentatively to 5, at a joint meeting of the board, city council and the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. It was voted to postpone the date for starting garbage disposal service in the first district—the Peachtree - Buckhead district—from February 1 to April 1. Recommended Scale. Recommended assessment scale WILL CONVENE TODAY for the garbage districts: ATHENS, Jan. 24.—(P)—The

MARIETTA, Jan. 24.—Seizure ing of a drive against liquor transportation through Cobb countya traffic on which the Cobb county grand jury is expected to make known its views in presentments anticipated tomorrow.

These actions, taken Saturday but not revealed until today, followed closely on the heels of Judge J. H. Hawkins' charge to the grand jury, in which he de-clared more than 200 trucks pass through Cobb county each month, transporting liquor under Florida bills of lading.

State highway patrolmen Sat-urday arrested a man giving his name as J. P. Thomas Jr. and a woman companion following seizure of 66 gallons of whisky on Bankhead highway near Austell. Though both were charged at first with possessing and transporting whisky and released under bonds of $500 and $100, respectively, charges against the woman later were dismissed. Thomas gave his
